

ABSTRACT

In acid catalysed continuous hydrocarbon conversion reactions such as olefin oligomerisation or alkylation in the presence of phosphoric acid or zeolite catalysts the hydrocarbon feed is hydrated and the degree of hydration is adjusted according to the composition of the feed.